

Miller House and Garden

Completed 1954

- The Miller House was the first home in the United States to feature a conversation pit, or sunken living room.
- Goal: Your task is to design a structure with a conversation pit, or sunken living room.
- Think About Your Structure: There must be a way for people to get into the sunken level. Will there be stairs, a ramp or what else can you think of to help people get in and out of the living room?
- Hint: Think about the order or sequencing of how you build your structure.
- Now What? Do you think the sunken living room is the best solution for conversations? Would you want one in your house? What other alternatives would you consider?

Draw your sketch here (use back if needed)